

THE BERRY BOYS PROJECT

Since 2011, Te Papa's history curator, along with university interns, volunteers, genealogists and members of the public, have been on the trail of the identities of 120 First World War soldiers who were photographed at the Wellington studios of Berry & Co, prior to their departure for war.

Join Te Papa history curator, Kirstie Ross, as she shares about the detective work undertaken to reveal the identities of more than 90 of Te Papa's 'Berry Boys'.

Saturday 18 October, 2pm – 3pm
Christchurch South Library, Sydenham Room

Bookings essential. To RSVP please phone 941 5140. You are invited to provide a gold coin donation.

Kirstie Ross is Curator Modern New Zealand at the Museum of New Zealand Te Papa Tongarewa, where she specialises in 20th century social history and material culture.
