

a charred log which must have been left by the Surveyor camp <sup>50</sup> year earlier. It was a witness to that unassuming power a good workman has of looking at a hillside covered with trees <sup>being</sup> able to see <sup>the best</sup> the line which will work this it is <sup>land</sup> <sup>high</sup> <sup>when</sup> <sup>where</sup> he wants to be top course as soon as he is above the level marks for height. Spot where he can work water. We soon had a good fire & a good camp this he did not pitch the tent. I had rather a good night & it took me some time to get into my clothes next morning we got off at 5 o'clock & got up to the ridge pretty high up & looked on the snowfield of glaciers that I remain with the upper <sup>Araxawalla</sup> <sup>Araxawalla</sup> <sup>Araxawalla</sup> there we had the best view of the hills & glaciers on the other side that was marked by the peak <sup>the</sup> <sup>was</sup> <sup>nothing</sup> <sup>but</sup> a snow walk up below the line of rocky teeth we had seen from the previous climb <sup>xx</sup> It seems in bitterly cold with mist & wind from the ~~the~~ bad glacier. Cox was the only one who was to go on we did not want a bad camp at <sup>that</sup> height if we went back we could reach our base camp that night. Personally I was afraid that if I got lost & my leg got worse I should find it difficult in getting down at all, I knew that I should be slow in the last bit. <sup>Eventually</sup> we returned & after a hard set off I think camp & went home. We had at all events seen & got photos of the upper Araxawalla that had not been taken before. We stayed at the base of the all got better falls in the rough timber country

* After a bit of cutting on small scale glacier *

* This name has been Muller's Point & it fits in well with the description *

* on our previous climb *

* Show that some steel rods which were ground & tied by Schermer which could not be seen would probably be bridged *

* It was I suppose in the time we were not far from a peak <sup>then</sup> they had not been climbed before, ~~as~~ ~~the~~ ~~then~~ while we thought we had made a second ascent of the peak we had climbed <sup>from</sup> ~~the~~ day before. *
