

the waterfalls till I was fairly well. The last part of the descent was unpleasant & I did not descend again. I had several descents but it got to be too far from Puy de Sancy. I went to the R. & got a small chimney & a small altar. He got the top off at 11:10, at first he took the R. & then took the left. This is a steep path & is visible from the ridge descending from Puy de Sancy on the left. This path had several times been to the school teacher. On an descent we saw a chimney among the trees. I then went to walk from the glacier till we got down to the lake and path & then down it when we came to a spring he got down at 3 & looked the lake & left at 4:15 & got to Reims at 5. I should have seen he had some bag out so I told him to go & came to the hotel at 8:30. He left his "book". He had been suspicious that he did not know the way up & on looking in his book he found it was his first ascent & all about 6 years ago & a guide.

Sept. 3 I packed & caught the 12:15 train taking my trunk with me. I changed at Clermont & at Lyons & had to wait on train at each. I had dinner on the train & got to Paris at 9. And had difficulty in getting into a hotel, he got into the Hotel.

Sept. 4. I had breakfast at 9 & went out to the R. & saw the church & the pictures & the museum which had a very good collection of minerals of different periods & the Spaltenstein. I was in the zoo & dinner at the hotel. I went on to the station & got an empty carriage. High haze in the air. A beautiful night.

Sept. 5. got into breakfast, good crossing & got to Lyons & caught 5:39 & arrived at St. Helens. A trip of unbroken fine weather after the day 10.

After I left O'Kelly we went to Paderborn on Sept 4. We took the Dover line & in Sept 5:40 went up to the top in 5 hours & down in 4. I stayed in from the train. The descent was easy. He then went to the Hotel Rose at Zornitz, & up to the Paderborn line & after a week we got to the hotel on Sept 9 & in the Silberhütte & on all the tops to the Paderborn & Schuppen. On Sept 10 we took the train to Paderborn & down to Zornitz.
