

Zaitoun

Sunday 28th

We arrived here about midday yesterday, and are quite settled down to the ~~new~~^{old} life. This is not such a pleasant place as Fsmailia, as far as camp and work are concerned. It is far more windy and dusty, and there is no cool blue lake, but the leave and the attractions of town more than balance that.

The journey yesterday was fairly interesting, especially the Delta part, where the landscape is quite homely, with green crops and belts of trees.

There is another rumour today that we are going to the Dardanelles, but I don't believe it.

Good-bye for the present.

With love from
Becil
