

JUNE, 1916.

Saturday 24

Same again to-day
Made things so warm that we were able to do very little work & had
to go back to our
line as a long way
round as shell hole
was bursting over the nearest post.

Sunday 25

Same fatigue to-day
Does not seem like Sunday. Saw shells to-day. Saw ~~one~~ of our planes destroy two enemy balloons.

Monday 26th

Same fatigue. Did a good day's work as I only did not worry us. All hands on fatigue again at 10 p.m. Had to carry some ropes up to the firing line. Very heavy, and raining ground very slippery.

Tuesday 27th

Returned from fatigue at 3:15 p.m. and had to stand to till 4 a.m. then work to do to-day so had a good sleep. Still in after stand to to-night and marched back to town billets.

Wednesday 28th

On engineers fatigue to-day at 10 a.m. Good got not much to do.
Had a walk this evening. Just going to turn in when I was ordered to fall in with full pack. At 11 a.m. brigade guard.
