TELEGRAPHIC AND POSTAL.

The tariff rates for telegrams from any station to any station in New Zealand are:—Ordinary telegrams, for the first twelve words or less (including address and signature) sixpence, and for every additional word one penny. Double these rates are charged for urgent telegrams, and the rates for both ordinary and urgent telegrams are doubled on Sundays. Good Friday and Christmas Day are counted as Sundays. Cablegrams can be sent to Great Britain or to any accessible part of Europe at a cost of three shillings and four pence per word.

Postage rates on letters and cards for New Zealand, the United Kingdom and British possessions, are one penny for each half-ounce or fraction thereof. Newspapers for town and inland are charged one half-penny each, and for Australia and all other places one penny each. But for the latter, the weight of each newspaper must not exceed four ounces, and a half-penny extra is charged for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof.

Coin, bank notes or other paper money such as cheques, etc. can be sent by letter-post only, and all letters containing money or jewellery must be registered.
